1. What is Dilaudid?

Dilaudid is the brand name for hydromorphone, a potent opioid pain medication. Dilaudid is much stronger than common opioids like morphine or codeine and requires careful medical supervision.

2. Is Dilaudid a controlled substance?

Yes. Dilaudid is classified as a Schedule II controlled substance in the United States, meaning it has recognized medical use but a high potential for abuse, dependence, and diversion. Similar regulations exist internationally. This is why legal access is tightly controlled.

- Verification of patient identity and prescription authenticity

It does not mean buying Dilaudid from unregulated or “no-prescription” websites.

In some cases, telehealth may allow prescriptions for Dilaudid if all regulatory requirements are satisfied, including:

Websites claiming to sell Dilaudid without a prescription are illegal and unsafe because:

Risks include:

- Dangerous interactions with alcohol, benzodiazepines, or other CNS depressants

Even short-term misuse can be fatal.

Verification is essential to avoid counterfeit or illegal drugs.
